

DETECT EARLY. SAVE LIVES.

The Brem Foundation's Re-Bra initiative is a unique, innovative and easy way for women to donate bras to women in need.

Re-Bra originated as a way to offer breast surgery patients the opportunity to transform their pre-surgery bras that no longer fit, into a vehicle for good. Re-Bra has grown into an expansive bra collection program giving women the opportunity to donate their gently used bras to women in need. Every bra donated through Re-Bra includes Brem's breast health information in English and Spanish, and local resources where women can get screened.

What Brem will Provide

- Re-Bra tags
- Labels for the tags with info on where women can get low-cost screenings in your area
- Pink pins
- Materials to paste on box/bin
- A list of donation centers near you
- Other breast health resources (digital and/or printout)

How can I help get bras into the hands of women in need?

1

Grab a bin or box to use for donations - any type of collection bin will work! Brem will provide materials to put on the bin (we can also include your logo on the materials).

2

Gather your gently used bras, collect amongst your friends and family, or hold a community Re-Bra drive.

3

Get a group together, or recruit individual volunteers to tag the collected bras with Brem's Re-Bra tag. Tag includes breast health information in both English and Spanish. Brem will provide Re-Bra tags and pink safety pins for the tags. We can also provide stickers (which get put on the blank space) with screening location info for screening locations in your area.

4

Take a photo with all of the bras you collected to show off your hard work and support! Send to info@bremfoundation.org along with your handles so we can share on social media. Or tag us @thebremfoundation on Facebook and Instagram and @bremfoundation on Twitter if share out your Re-Bra efforts!

5

Donate the tagged bras to a local clothing distribution center near you. Brem can help identify centers in your area should you want help to find a clothing donation center near you.
